

SAFETY FIRST

That's the H.B. Fuller Way

Hi, I'm John

John is a production worker in one of the H.B. Fuller factories

While working one day, he notices some spilled liquid on the ground, and immediately marks the area with safety cones to prevent anyone from slipping.

He then informs his manager, who directs maintenance crews to assess the situation and address the mess.

Personal Protective Equipment

Later that day, John approaches an area of the factory where personal protective equipment (PPE) must be worn.

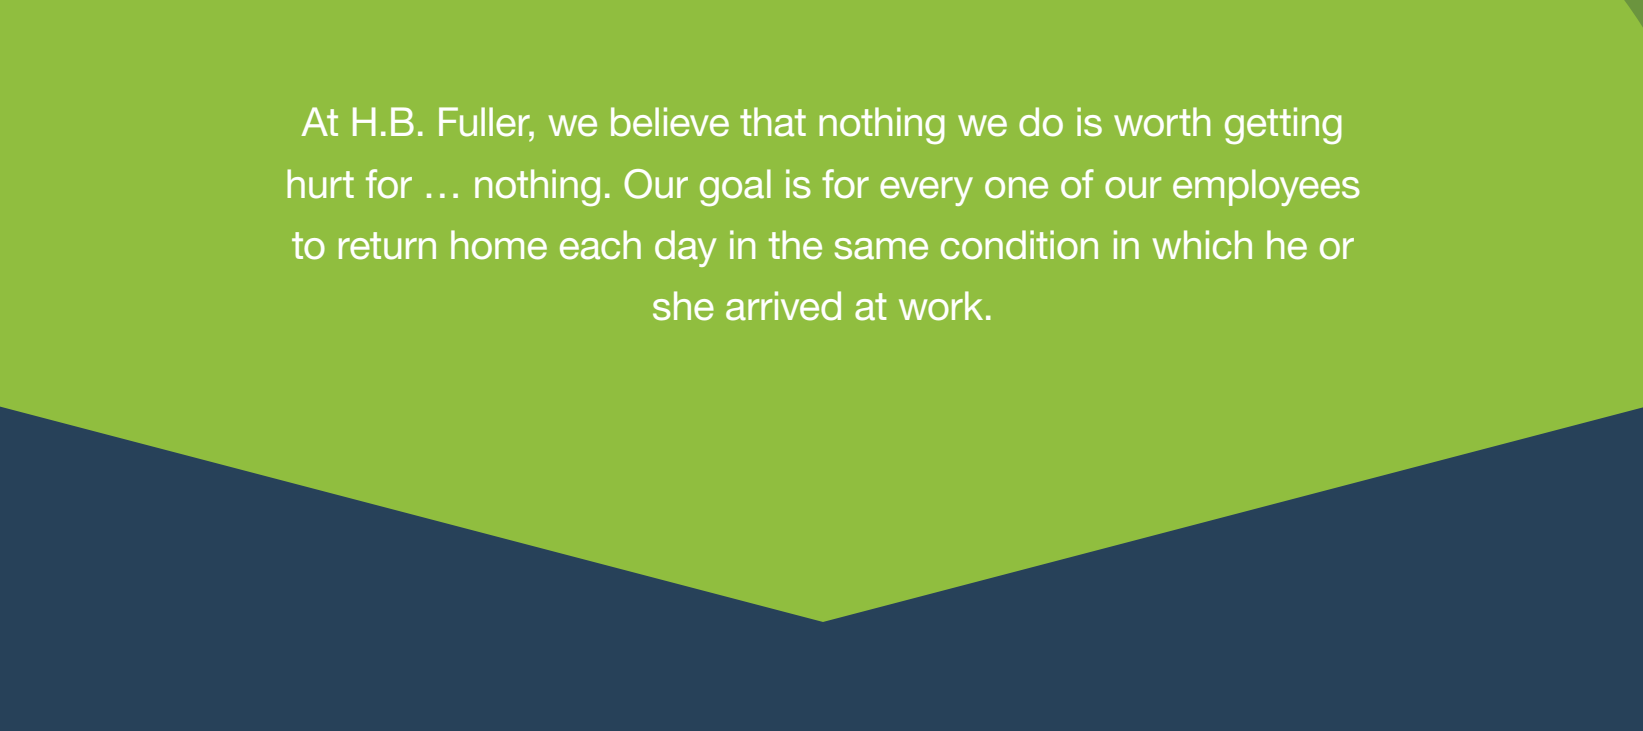

Before entering the space, he puts on a safety vest, gloves, hard hat and goggles. John is now ready to get to work, properly outfitted and prepared in advance should a mishap occur.

Just as John begins to wrap things up for the day, a forklift drives by, and John motions for the driver to honk his horn as he begins to turn a corner.

This is a precautionary method employed at H.B. Fuller to ensure that any bystanders in the area are well aware that a forklift is nearby.

John returns home after a productive and safe day at work

At H.B. Fuller, we believe that nothing we do is worth getting hurt for ... nothing. Our goal is for every one of our employees to return home each day in the same condition in which he or she arrived at work.